2. INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY

POLICY

Policy Statement

It is Council's policy to establish a process around Tseshaht First Nation's information systems to support its operational requirements and have appropriate safeguards and monitoring processes in place.

Purpose

The purpose of this policy is to make sure that Tseshaht First Nation's information is adequately protected and that the information system has integrity to maintain and support the strategic and operational requirements of Tseshaht.

Scope

This policy applies to all staff involved in the selection, implementation, operations, and ongoing maintenance of Tseshaht's information systems.

Responsibilities

Council is responsible for:

- approving the information technology policy used by the Tseshaht First Nation

The Executive Director is responsible for:

- ensuring that controls are in place over information technology, whether performed by an internal staff member or outsourced
- establishing and implementing documented procedures for information technology used by the Tseshaht First Nation
- monitoring the performance of internal and/or external information technology professionals

The information technology professional (internal and/or external) is responsible for:

- maintaining the integrity of information systems within the Tseshaht First Nation

ADMINISTRATIVE PROCEDURES

Procedures

2.1 Planning and Evaluation

The Executive Director, with input from information technology professional (internal and/or external), will make sure that information systems are developed that support the Tseshaht's strategic plan and operations.

When there are no individuals internally with the requisite technical skills to identify information technology requirements or evaluate options, the Executive Director will seek advice from a qualified external individual or organization.

2.2 Outsourcing

Subject to the purchasing section of the finance policy, the Executive Director is responsible for the selection of contractors providing information technology services, the definition of services in their contracts, establishing service level agreements and the administration of the contracts.

Specific items which should be included in the procurement of information technology services and final contract with the chosen provider include:

- a requirement that the service provider submits regular reports of all work performed on Tseshaht's information systems
- a requirement that outsourced parties are responsible to comply with legal and regulatory requirements, including the protection of confidential and private information
- access by outsourced parties to Tseshaht information is provided on a 'need to know basis' only

2.3 Data Management

Subject to the Records Information Management section of this policy, data retention allows access to appropriate data to specified personnel where required, depending on the type of data retained.

All sensitive, valuable, or critical data stored on the Tseshaht First Nation's information technology systems must be regularly backed-up.

Backup drives must be stored in a secure location with access limited to the Executive Director and limited other staff as appropriate. Ideally, backup drives will be securely stored at an offsite location that is easily accessible to individuals with authorized access.

2.4 Access Management

All individuals requiring access to Tseshaht First Nation information systems will have unique user identification. Shared user IDs or passwords will not be permitted.

Requests for access to Tseshaht First Nation's network, accounting system, or other access restricted information system must include a description of an employee's role and rationale for the level of access required. Signed approval must be obtained from the Executive Director.

User ID and password are required for access to the network and other critical programs/areas such as the accounting system.

Individuals will be given access privileges to the extent necessary to fulfill their individual job function and no more. Systems and applications should not be configured with unrestricted access to all data.

When an employee's employment is terminated, their user IDs must be disabled immediately.

Support personnel must notify the user when attempting to take control of a workstation. No unauthorized programs shall be used to remotely access Tseshaht computers. The use of the remote-control software must be in accordance to applicable agreements.

2.5 Information System Security

Security tools and techniques are implemented to enable restrictions on access to programs and data.

Security tools and techniques are administered to restrict access to programs and data.

Each computer resource must have an approved antivirus program installed. The following standards must be met:

- the antivirus program must not be disabled and must be configured to scan all programs and files upon execution and must have real time protection enabled
- antivirus files must be updated on the network regularly or whenever a new threat is identified

Network firewalls must be configured to support a 'least-privilege' approach to security, allowing only specific systems, services and protocols to communicate through the network perimeter. Logical and physical access to these systems must be limited strictly to those personnel with specific training and authorization to manage the device. Additionally, the following Firewall standards must be addressed:

- firewall and proxy servers must be securely installed
- detailed firewall logs must be maintained
- alerts must be raised if important services or processes crash

2.6 Change Management

All new data structure and modifications to data structure will be tested before implementation.

All computers, hardware, software and communication systems used for a production environment must employ a documented change control process. The change management process should include the following activities:

- data structure is consistent with the needs of Tseshaht First Nation

- description and rationale for the new network, hardware, communication, and systems software change and how it is consistent with the needs of Tseshaht First Nation
- assessment of any risks involved with the change
- roll-back considerations
- implementation considerations
- description of required testing
- approval from the relevant Officer
- communication of changes to Tseshaht First Nation staff as appropriate

2.7 Monitoring

Only approved and authorized programs will be implemented onto Tseshaht First Nation information management systems. The Executive Director will conduct periodic reviews of the workstations and the system to monitor compliance with this requirement.

A log of staff, their user IDs, and their access levels within Tseshaht First Nation information systems will be maintained. On a periodic basis, the Executive Director will review the log to make sure users and the associated access rights are appropriate. Access rights that will be monitored include the following:

- user access management (i.e. the accounting system)
- third party access (i.e. outsourced information technology professionals)
- network access and file sharing
- remote and VPN access

Network system performance is monitored on a regular basis.

The firewalls must be monitored regularly.

3. RECORD INFORMATION MANAGEMENT

POLICY

Policy Statement

It is Council's policy to establish a process around the creation, collection, organization, retention, and safeguarding of records for long term availability, understandability and usability.

Purpose

The purpose of the policy is to provide guidance on effective recordkeeping practices to create, manage and protect the integrity of Tseshaht First Nation's records that support its decision-making, reporting, performance and accountability requirements.

Scope

This policy applies to all Council members, members of the Finance and Audit Committee, Officers and employees of Tseshaht First Nation and any contractors or volunteers performing services on behalf of the Council. The direction provided in this policy applies to all records created and acquired by Tseshaht First Nation regardless of format (i.e., both electronic and paper records).

Responsibilities

Council is responsible for:

- approving the policy for records management

The Executive Director is responsible for:

- establishing and implementing documented procedures for records management
- implementing appropriate recordkeeping practices
- make sure appropriate safeguards of the Tseshaht First Nation's records
- ensuring compliance with the established records retention and disposition schedule and overseeing the disposition process
- ensuring that employees and any contractors or volunteers performing services on behalf of the Council are fully knowledgeable of their responsibilities as they relate to recordkeeping practices

Employees, contractors, and volunteers are responsible for:

- complying with the established policy
- immediately reporting to their supervisor any potential breach related to compliance with the recordkeeping policy

ADMINISTRATIVE PROCEDURES

Procedures

3.1 Accountability

Each record will have a designated employee that makes sure the recordkeeping framework outlined in this policy is applied to the record. All employees, contractors, or volunteers that are in custody of a record must make sure it is managed in accordance with this policy.

Permanent records such as policies and procedures will be reviewed and updated by the assigned employee on a regular basis.

Records under the safekeeping of a departing employee, contractor or volunteer must be formally transferred to another employee through a knowledge transfer process. This process should include information on the types of records to be transferred, how the records are organized, in which location the records are kept, and required safeguards.

3.2 Creation and Collection

Key activities and decision-making processes of Tseshaht First Nation should be identified, including the records required to support those processes, to ensure accountability, preserve an audit trail, and protect Tseshaht First Nation from liability.

All information at its time of creation or collection should be assessed to determine if it supports Council's business purposes and/or legal obligations and enables decision-making. If determined to be a record, the management of the record should comply with the procedures outlined within this policy.

The record will contain information necessary to achieve the objectives for which each record is created and will be limited to only what is necessary to achieve those objectives.

Whenever possible, the record will contain information about one single function or activity to facilitate information classification, organization, retention and retrieval.

Tseshaht First Nation's records will be legible, written in plain language and adapted to their specific audience.

Only one copy of each record should be created or collected. When creating or collecting a record, individuals should first check to see if the record is already in existence. In instances of multiple copies of the same record, copies should be securely disposed in accordance with the requirements of this policy.

3.3 Organization and Classification

A classification plan structure will be implemented based on Tseshaht First Nation's functions and activities, with records stored in accordance with the activity and/or function that it supports.

Records should be subject to a consistent naming convention, with the name of the record including at minimum the date, title, and version (v. XX).

The title of the document should be short.

An official storage location will be identified and designated for each record. The number of storage locations should be limited and be consistent to support the format and type of record.

Records should be made accessible, shared and re-used to the greatest extent possible, subject to technological, legal policy and security restrictions. Previous versions of updated forms, documents, etc. should be archived to ensure use of current templates and prevent use of old/expired versions.

3.4 Maintenance, Protection and Preservation

Records will be protected and stored in the appropriate storage location in a way that preserves their long-term availability, understandability and usability.

Backups will be taken of all electronic records on a regular basis and stored in a physical or digital location separate from the location of the original records.

Any records that are only in hardcopy paper-based format should be assessed to determine if they need to be scanned or if other physical security measures need to be taken (e.g. use of fire/waterproof cabinets) to protect their long term availability.

Records that contain personal information or information of a confidential nature related to the Council, or a third party, such as the confidential financial information related to a business, should be labelled as CONFIDENTIAL.

Confidential records should be protected with appropriate safeguards to make sure only those with a need to know will have access to the records:

- for electronic records, confidential records should be protected with controls on the document itself (such as password protection) and other administrative controls, such as restricting access to the electronic storage location in which the record is stored
- for hardcopy paper-based records, confidential records will be stored in secure filing cabinets at all times unless being used, and transported in a secure manner if required to be offsite

3.5 Retention and Disposition

The records will be retained for the period specified in the records and information retention and disposition schedule, as outlined in Appendix A. They will be disposed of in a manner that prevents their reconstruction (for paper-based records) or recovery (for electronic records).

4. INFORMATION PRIVACY

POLICY

Policy

It is Council's policy to establish a process around ensuring the privacy of personal information provided to Tseshaht First Nation in compliance with legislative requirements such as those outlined in the Personal Information Protection and Electronic Documents Act or similar federal and provincial legislation.

Purpose

The purpose of this policy is to provide guidance on the implementation and maintenance of appropriate information privacy practices within Tseshaht First Nation related to the collection, use, disclosure, retention, and safeguarding of personal information.

Scope

This policy applies to all Council members, members of the Finance and Audit Committee, Officers and employees of Tseshaht First Nation and any contractors or volunteers performing services on behalf of the Council. The direction provided in this policy applies to all personal information created and acquired by Tseshaht First Nation regardless of format (i.e., both electronic and hardcopy paper records).

Responsibilities

Council is responsible for:

- approving and complying with the policy for privacy and the management of personal information

The Executive Director is responsible for:

- establishing and implementing documented procedures for privacy and the management of personal information
- designating an employee to manage and oversee Tseshaht First Nation's compliance with privacy requirements and this policy
- ensuring compliance with this policy

The designated employee who manages and oversees information privacy function is responsible for:

- developing and maintaining standards, policies and procedures that support the objectives of Tseshaht First Nation's privacy program
- making sure that all the activities of Tseshaht First Nation are conducted in compliance with the established privacy standards, policies and procedures and in accordance with the generally accepted privacy principles. For this, the employee will:

- provide training and awareness on privacy protection
- make sure that community members are aware of their rights as they relate to privacy, including their right of access to, and the right to request the correction of, all the personal information which is kept about them by Tseshaht First Nation
- act as an expert resource on privacy matters
- conduct periodic reviews of Tseshaht First Nation’s activities that involve the collection, use, disclosure, retention, and safeguarding of personal information
- investigating all complaints regarding the collection/creation, accuracy, use, sharing/disclosure, protection, retention and destruction of personal information and reporting the results to the appropriate supervisor and, where warranted, to Council
- recommending changes to policies, procedures and practices in response to the issues raised in the complaints
- responding in writing to the requests for access to, and correction of personal information submitted by employees and community members within [5] days from the date of the receipt

Employees, contractors and volunteers are responsible for:

- complying with the established policy
- immediately reporting to their direct supervisor any privacy breaches

ADMINISTRATIVE PROCEDURES

Procedures

4.1 Accountability

The Executive Director will designate an employee to make sure the principles outlined in this policy are implemented.

4.2 Identifying Purpose

The purposes for the collection of personal information should be communicated to individuals at or before the time of collection. Depending upon the way in which the information is collected, this can be done orally or in writing. An application form, for example, may give notice of the purposes.

Persons collecting personal information must be able to explain to individuals the purposes for which the information is being collected.

4.3 Consent

With limited exceptions, Tseshaht First Nation must obtain consent, verbal or written, from an individual before collecting their personal information. Consent requires that the individual is advised of the purposes for which the information is being collected and how it will be used and disclosed.

Consent must be stated in such a manner that the individual can reasonably understand how the information will be used or disclosed. Consent must not be obtained through deception.

Personal information can be collected, used, or disclosed without the knowledge and consent of the individual in only limited circumstances, such as legal or security reasons which may make it impossible or impractical to seek consent.

If personal information is intended to be used or disclosed for a new purpose not identified during the original collection, and not related to the original purpose of the collection, the consent of the individual must be obtained.

Individuals can give consent in many ways. For example:

- a form may be used to seek consent, collect information, and inform the individual of the use that will be made of the information; by completing and signing the form, the individual is giving consent to the collection and the specified uses
- consent may be given orally
- consent may be given through electronic means

An individual may withdraw consent at any time, subject to legal or contractual restrictions and reasonable notice.

4.4 Limiting Collection

Tseshaht First Nation cannot collect personal information unethically. Both the amount and the type of information collected must be limited to that which is necessary to fulfill the purposes identified.

4.5 Limiting Use, Disclosure and Retention

Personal information will only be used or disclosed for the purpose for which it was collected, specifically:

- consistent with the original collection of the personal information
- when consent of the individual is obtained
- for complying with a subpoena or warrant issued or order made by a court, person or body with jurisdiction to compel the production of information or for the purpose of complying with rules of court relating to the production of information

Personal information that has been used to make a decision about an individual must be retained long enough to allow the individual access to the information after the decision has been made.

Identifiable personal information must only be used and disclosed if required.

Personal information that is no longer required to fulfill the identified purposes will be destroyed, erased, or made anonymous in accordance with Tseshaht First Nation's retention and disposition schedule.

4.6 Accuracy

Tseshah First Nation will take all reasonable steps to make sure that personal information that is used to make a decision on an individual is as accurate, up-to-date and complete as possible to minimize the possibility that inappropriate information may be used to make a decision about the individual.

4.7 Safeguards

Personal information should be protected with appropriate safeguards to make sure only those with a need to know will have access to the records:

- for electronic records containing personal information, the records should be protected with controls on the document itself (such as password protection) and other administrative controls, such as restricting access to the electronic storage location in which the record is stored
- for hardcopy paper-based records, containing personal information, the records should be stored in secure filing cabinets at all times unless being used, and transported in a secure manner if required to be taken offsite

Tseshah First Nation must make its employees, contractors, and volunteers aware of the importance of maintaining the confidentiality of personal information.

Care must be used in the disposal or destruction of personal information, to prevent unauthorized parties from gaining access to the information.

4.8 Openness

Tseshah First Nation must be open about its policies and practices with respect to the management of personal information. Individuals will be able to easily acquire information about its policies and practices. This information must be made available in a form that is generally understandable.

The information made available should include:

- the name or title, and the address, of the designated employee overseeing information privacy, who is accountable for Tseshah First Nation's policies and practices, and to whom complaints or inquiries can be forwarded
- the means of gaining access to personal information held by Tseshah First Nation
- a description of the type of personal information held by Tseshah Nation

4.9 Individual Access

When requested, an individual must be informed if Tseshah First Nation holds personal information about the individual and provided an account of the use that has been made or is being made of this information and an account of the third parties to which it has been disclosed.

The identity of an individual will be authenticated before discussing their personal information with them.

When requested, Tseshah First Nation must provide an individual with access to their personal information within a reasonable time and at minimal or no cost to the individual. The requested information will be provided or made available in a form that is generally understandable.

Individuals who are given access to their personal information may:

- request correction of the personal information where the individual believes there is an error or omission therein
- require that a notation be attached to the information reflecting any correction requested but not made
- require that any person or body to whom that information has been disclosed for use for a decision-making process, within a reasonable time that a correction or notation is requested, be notified of the correction or notation

In certain situations, Tseshah First Nation may not be able to provide access to all the personal information it holds about an individual. Exceptions to the access requirement will be limited and specific. The reasons for denying access will be provided to the individual upon request.

Exceptions may include information that:

- contains references to other individuals
- cannot be disclosed for legal, security, or commercial proprietary reasons
- is subject to solicitor-client or litigation privilege

4.10 Challenging Compliance

Tseshah First Nation will make sure that a process exists to receive and respond to complaints or inquiries about its policies and practices relating to the handling of personal information. The complaint procedures will be easily accessible and simple to use.

If a complaint is found to be justified, Tseshah First Nation will take appropriate measures, including, if necessary, amending its policies and practices.
